Dear Parents and Carers with a child in EYFS

EYFS Update

We write today with an update on our EYFS class arrangements now that the first half term draws to a close - the children have settled in beautifully and are thriving in their learning.

At the welcome meeting in July, we introduced our three EYFS classes: Daffodils, Bluebells, and Snowdrops. With a smaller intake this year, we made a considered decision to initially combine Daffodils and Bluebells. This allowed us to make the most of our learning environment by creating a dedicated quiet space for small group work and targeted support.

We also planned for the possibility of welcoming more children, and we're delighted that several new pupils have joined us since the start of term. As a result, Daffodils and Bluebells are now operating as separate classes, which enables us to maintain small class sizes and continue delivering high-quality, individualised learning experiences.

Furthermore, Mrs Bond will start her maternity leave on Friday 17th October. Mrs Richards will be teaching in Bluebells Class 4 days per week on a Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday and a teacher called, Miss Stirland will cover each Wednesday throughout the next half term. In the New Year, we will welcome Mrs Dowsett back from maternity leave and she will be teaching Bluebells each Wednesday.

We hope this update provides clarity and reassurance. If you have any further questions, please don't hesitate to get in touch.

Thank you for your continued support.

Yours faithfully,

Adrian Nash
