March 18th: Troubled Waters with Corinne Harragin

With over 4,000 miles of polluted waterways, Britain and Ireland's rivers are in ruin. This vibrant new tapestry of transporting tales winds through stories that have shaped our relationship with rivers, the lifeblood of our landscape. Leaping salmon, fishtail women, mythical raves & sacred springs...

April 15th: Stoopid with Alys Torrance

Folktales are full of duffers, twits and fools. We invite you to embrace your inner idiot, learn how to wear trousers, and finally understand why the chicken crossed the road. Most importantly we will unravel the riddle: Who else is Else?

On the side of a mountain called Meros a young girl is dancing. She is a sacred dancer to the Olympian gods, and life on the mountain is all she has ever known. But her story will take her far from the mountain she grew up on, and across the seas, in a dreaming, unwinding myth of the birth (and birth, and birth) of a brand new Olympian god...

The very best of contemporary storytelling for an adult audience.
